

From A to Z: A woman's guide to the law

This unique and accessible guide from Rights of Women provides women with information on an extensive range of legal topics, from Abduction to Zero Tolerance.

This A to Z guide covers different areas of law including: asylum and immigration law; criminal law; discrimination and employment law; the English legal system; family law; housing; human rights law; and welfare and consumer rights.

From A to Z: A woman's guide to the law is essential reading for all women, and those organisations that provide support, advice and advocacy for women.

RIGHTS OF WOMEN

Rights of Women is a well established and expanding not-for-profit organisation committed to informing, educating and empowering women on the law and their legal rights. The organisation runs a free legal advice telephone service for women and produces publications on women's rights. Rights of Women's areas of expertise include family law, relationship breakdown, domestic violence, sexual violence, immigration and asylum and it frequently runs conferences and training on these issues.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

'This is a vital guide to help women get their rights in a legal system where laws are mainly made by men and judged by men in an overwhelmingly male legal profession'

Rt Hon. Harriet Harman QC MP, Minister of State in the Department of Constitutional Affairs.

'For women beset by problems, a book like this makes the difference between trembling in the dark and going forward confidently to get your rights.'

Denise Robertson, Agony Aunt, Writer and Broadcaster.

'In light of the constraints in accessing justice we welcome this handbook from Rights of Women. We believe it is a critical step forward in achieving equality for women by providing essential legal information.' Asian Women's Resource Centre, Brent, London.

'A wonderfully well-organised manual which is of practical use both to our advisors and service users.' Susana Klien, Director, Latin American Women's Rights Service.

'Yet another excellent publication from Rights of Women! This handbook will change lives and is a "must have" for women everywhere.' Linda Durrant, Regional Women's Officer, UNISON Eastern Region.
